Prime Minister Wins An Edge In Parliament

TORONTO (AP) - It was a Trudeau tidal wave, and it gave his party a clearcut mandate to rule Canada with a strength no party has enjoyed in six years.

In Tuesday's election Pierre Elliott Trudeau, who entered politics only three years ago, led his Liberals to the biggest victory any party has scored since John Diefenbaker's prime. Diefenbaker in 1958 spearheaded the Conservatives to a landslide triumph that was good for four years' control. Trudeau became Liberal leader, and thus prime minister, by choice of a party convention two months ago when Lester B. Pearson retired. Tuesday Canadian voters had the chance to ratify or repudiate the choice. Their answer gave the Liberals the House of Commons majority they had never won under Pearson's leadership.

Gamble Paid Off Trudeau on assuming the prime ministry vowed to improve his party's standing. As the leading party, even lacking a majority, the Liberals could call an election at a time they thought advantageous. Trudeau and his aides judged this a good time, and the bet paid off. How did he do it? There is no ed him on the campaign trail across the country. But as the campaign progressed he also showed himself a pragmatic and tough politician. He said the right things and made no big promises. No Consequence Though a native of Quebec, he didn't give an inch to those Quebeckers who want a special deal for that dominantly Frenchspeaking province, or even to split off from Canada. There is one Canada, Trudeau said, and that's the way it's going to be. At the last minute, when Quebec separatists rioted in Montreal and hurled a bottle past the prime minister, he didn't flinch. In contrast, the Conservatives, though also under new leadership, never caught popular fancy. Robert Stanfield, the Nova Scotian who replaced Diefenbaker last year, said as the returns rolled in that he had known 24 hours earlier that his party was beaten.

Stanfield is 54, only six years older than Trudeau, but to most Canadians, it appeared, his and the Tories' ideas were old-hat or HOLLAND (AP)—A curtain of at least not good enough. Voted Liberal party has enjoyed in six years. In Tuesday's election Pierre Elliott Trudeau, who entered politics only three years ago, led his Liberals to the biggest victory any party has scored since John Diefenbaker's prime. Diefenbaker in 1958 spearheaded the Conservatives to a landslide triumph that was good for four years' control.

Prime Minister Wins An Edge In Parliament

TORONTO (AP) - It was a Trudeau tidal wave, and it gave his party a clearcut mandate to rule Canada with a strength no

Trudeau became Liberal leader, and thus prime minister, by choice of a party convention two months ago when Lester B. Pearson retired. Tuesday Canadian voters had the chance to ratify or repudiate the choice. Their answer gave the Liberals the House of Commons majority they had never won under Pearson's leadership.

Gamble Paid Off

Trudeau on assuming the prime ministry vowed to improve his party's standing. As the leading party, even lacking a majority, the Liberals could call an election at a time they thought advantageous. Trudeau and his aides judged this a good time, and the bet paid off. How did he do it? There is no question of Trudeau's personal ed him on the campaign trail across the country. But as the campaign progressed he also and tough politician. He said the right things and made no big promises

No Concessions

Though a native of Quebec, he didn't give an inch to those Quebeckers who want a special deal for that dominantly Frenchspeaking province, or even to split off from Canada. There is one Canada, Trudeau said, and that's the way it's going to be. At the last minute, when Quebec separatists rioted in Montreal and hurled a bottle past the prime minister, he didn't flinch In contrast, the Conservatives, though also under new leadership, never caught popular fancy. Robert Stanfield, the Nova Scotian who replaced Diefenbaker last year, said as the returns rolled in that he had known 24 hours earlier that his party was beaten.

Holding Our Liquor

The Michigan Liquor Control Commission came to the Upper Peninsula this week for its annual outstate exposure. The occasion provided an opportunity for the commission's chairman, Stanley G. Thayer, an Ann Arbor attorney and former state senator, to review some of the state's current liquor control problems.

This is one of the very important departments of state government. We suppose that this might be said about any of them, and yet we are impressed that any agency charged with the enormous responsibility of controlling public behavior as it is influenced by alcohol has high priority in governmental concern.

Two out of three American adults are now reported to be drinkers of alcoholic beverages. That doesn't mean that they are all steady drinkers or heavy drinkers, but that they do at times drink spirits. This, of course, is a great increase in drinking and it comes about in large part because women now drink, too, and before World War I and Prohibition this was a rather rare situation.

The condition of compulsive drinking called alcoholism has increased with general increase in drinking, and it affects women as well as men. Thayer said that the Temperance Foundation had shifted its emphasis from efforts for prohibition of drinking to the treatment of alcoholism as a disease.

The change, he believes, is a wholesome one which recognizes the facts of life about alcoholism in an industrial, drinking society. We tried to prevent drinking and cure its evils by denying people the privilege of buying alcoholic drinks legally in Prohibition. That was a ghastly failure which not only did not dry up the sources of alcoholic drinks, but which created a great bootleg traffic in illicit liquor that fostered public lawlessness and created a well-heeled underworld which still is with me 50 years after the beginning of Prohibition.

Foundation's emphasis on treatment of alcoholism. The disease, he said, needs understanding and there is also need for money to provide treatment. "The Temperance Foundation," he said "has faced up to the fact that people want liquor in moderation. The problems of drinking and of alcoholism are separated."

The nation is not apt soon again to try to cure the evils of abuse of alcoholic drinks by an attempt to prohibit them. It has been demonstrated an impossibility. The effort will now be on moderation, and on cure of alcoholism, which is being accepted as a disease which does not permit its victims to enjoy moderation, but which can be dealt with effectively only on a basis of abstention.

It is interesting that the Prohibition effort started ent as a moderation campaign. The ideal was temperated as a moderation in indulgence ance, which means habitual moderation in indulgence ance, which means habitual moderation in indulgence and Mrs. Jerry university is also more adept the labor movement coming had no play for seven hearts. ## Holding Our Liquor

The Michigan Liquor Control Commission came to the Upper Peninsula this week for its annual outstate exposure. The occasion provided an opportunity for the commission's chairman, Stanley G. Thayer, an Ann Arbor attorney and former state senator, to review some of the state's current liquor control problems.

This is one of the very important departments of state government. We suppose that this might be said about any of them, and yet we are impressed that any agency charged with the enormous responsibility of controlling public behavior as it is influenced by alcohol has high priority in governmental concern.

Two out of three American adults are now reported to be drinkers of alcoholic beverages. That doesn't mean that they are all steady drinkers or heavy drinkers, but that they do at times drink spirits. This, of course, is a great increase in drinking and it comes about in large part because women now drink, too, and before World War I and Prohibition this was a rather rare

The condition of compulsive drinking called alcoholism has increased with general increase in drinking, and it affects women as well as men. Thayer said that the Temperance Foundation had shifted its emphasis from efforts for prohibition of drinking to the treatment of alcoholism as a disease.

The change, he believes, is a wholesome one which recognizes the facts of life about alcoholism in an industrial, drinking society. We tried to prevent drinking and cure its evils by denying people the privilege of buying alcoholic drinks legally in Prohibition. That was a ghastly failure which not only did not dry up the sources of alcoholic drinks, but which created a great bootleg traffic in illicit liquor that fostered public lawlessness and created a well-heeled underworld which still is with us 50 years after the beginning of Prohibition.

Foundation's emphasis on treatment of alcoholism. The disease, he said, needs understanding and there is also need for money to provide treatment. "The Temperance Foundation," he said "has faced up to the fact that people want liquor in moderation. The problems of drinking and of alcoholism are separated."

The nation is not apt soon again to try to cure the evils of abuse of alcoholic drinks by an attempt to prohibit them. It has been demonstrated an impossibility. The effort will now be on moderation, and on cure of alcoholism, which is being accepted as a disease which does not permit its victims to enjoy moderation, but which can be dealt with effectively only on a basis of abstention.

It is interesting that the Prohibition effort started out as a moderation campaign. The ideal was temperance, which means habitual moderation in indulgence of appetites. With the abuses of the saloon trade before World War I, and the brewery control of local governments in order to assure tavern licensing, a strong On March 24, 1965, almost officials do not call in police role in university attended to the licensing of t Temperance movement developed. But it has created a pack of trouble and tragedy down through the ages, too. We cannot outlaw it and must learn to live with it and Chairman Thayer of the State Liquor Control Commission makes sense to us when he praises the Temperance Foundation for its efforts to keep drinking within the usual course of action at the bounds of healthful usage by moderation.

This will be crucial in the 1971 reapportionment commission deadlocked on redistricting of the state and the decision was referred to the Supreme Court.

"We are going to concentrate representative jobs in the Upper Peninsula. There is a fourway primary in the 110th District in the Western U. P. where Russell Hellman (D-Houghton) is the incumbent. Al Wright, of Ironwood who ran in 1966. Gordon Smith and Harold Dunn of Houghton are running on the Republican ticket and so is James Cudahy of Ironwood.

Gingrass Is Target "We have an excellent chance to unseat Jack Gingrass, the Democratic incumbent in the 109th District (Gogebic, Iron, Dickinson, Menominee and Marquette counties) who won by only 2 pct, last time. He will be opposed by Atty. Jack Payant of Iron Mountain, brother of the probate judge, who is getting a fine reaction to his candidacy.

"In the 108th District (Baraga, Marquette and Alger)
Dominic Jacobetti the Democretic incumbent has trouble in his own party and A. H. Menhenick of Marquette County has filed for the Republican nommation. We lost there by only 10 per cent last time.

Ruppe Praised

"We're all proud of the job that Phil Ruppe is doing in Congress and we think that he deserves another term and will win one. Delta County cannot really be considered a Democratic county any more because it, like the rest of the Upper Peninsula has 15 to 20 per cent of its voters who split their tickets. Governor Romney and Senator Griffin carried almost every county in the Upper Peninsula because of this situation and Congressman Ruppe came close to doing it. We lost U. P. one state representative election by only one pct, and one by only 5 pct. If we have the best candidate and the best campaign we can win and that's what we're working on."

Providing Jobs Helps Industry ST. LOUIS (AP)-Hiring and

training chronically unemployed people for jobs in a large business not only is possible, says Chrysler Corp. president Virgil E. Boyd, but advantageous to private industry. "We have reached the point where business as usual - advertising and selling of products, making a profit and paying our taxes - is no longer "It is clearly unfair for one enough," Boyd said. "A new dimension has been added, and that is advertising reaches into all 83 counties in and selling the ideas and the Michigan. fact of a socially responsible company," he told the 46th an- the grand jury investigation last nual conference of the Associa- week, charging that organized tion of Industrial Advertisers in crime had gained a foothold in St. Louis today.

under a program sponsored bribes and committed embezzlejointly by Chrysler and the fed- ment. eral government to hire 750 hard-core unemployed over a two-year period had a period of difficult adjustment to make. Most of them had no social security numbers, nor had they ever registered to vote, or been counted in a census, or belonged to any organization, Boyd said, adding: "In most of the accepted senses, they really didn't even exist.

Boyd said advisors assigned to the new men discovered that many did not get to work on time, or at all, simply because they could not read the signs on buses and became discouraged. Others, he said, did not even own alarm clocks.
